

Long Interview Questions:

How do you define success for yourself in education?

What do you hope to get from your education here?

If you have connections in school, how do you know it is a good relationship and what do you get from it?

Do you think schools are designed with the needs of Indigenous girls in mind?

What spaces in the school are safe and unsafe?

In the interviews that were conducted it was clear that a large percentage of girls felt as though their opinions and voice does not matter. How does that make you feel?

We are in the process of creating a program to support girls. What should be included?

Programming Considerations:

Are you involved in any in-school sports teams or other extra-curricular activities?

If you are not, why are you not participating?

How do people's expectation of you impact your view of yourself?

Can you give some examples of what has boosted your confidence?
