

TITLE: Targeted Decolonizing Teacher Education Training Design and Implementation

INVESTIGATORS:

Dr. Dustin Louie – Associate Professor, University of Calgary
Leona Prince – District Principal of Aboriginal Education, SD91

What is a research study?

A research study is a way to find out new information about something. Students don't need to participate in a research study if they don't want to participate.

Why are you being asked to be part of this research study?

You are being asked to take part in this research study because we are trying to learn more about your experiences in education. We are asking you to be in the study because we want to learn about Indigenous students' experiences in this school. About 200 students will be in this study.

If you join the study what will happen to you?

You will be given a survey to understand your experiences in education. There will be a home-school coordinator present who can clarify any questions you have and help you fill out the survey.

- We want to tell you about some things that will happen to you if you are in this study.
EXAMPLES BELOW
- You will be in the study for 30 minutes or less
- If you do not want to answer any of the questions, you are not required to and can end the survey at any time.
- The interviews will happen in any place you are comfortable. It could be at home, at school, or another location.

Will any part of the study hurt? No – this is completely safe and pain free.

Will the study help you? The study will give you a chance to voice your experiences in education and allow your voice to be heard.

Will the study help others? The outcomes of this research will help teachers meet the needs of Indigenous students.

Do your parents know about this study?

We will talk to your parents about your participation in this study as well. You can talk this over with them before you decide.

Who will see the information collected about you?

The information collected about you during this study will be kept safely locked up. Nobody will read it except the people doing the research. The study information about you will not be given to your parents or teachers. The researchers won't tell your friends or anyone else. Once your interviews have been transcribed and removed of identifiable information we will share the findings with First Nations in the area.

Do you have to be in the study?

You don't have to be in the study. No one will be upset if you don't want to do this study. If you don't want to be in this study, you just have to tell us. It's up to you. You can also take more time to think about being in the study.

What if you have any questions?

You can ask any questions that you may have about the study. If you have a question later that you didn't think of now, either you can call or have your parents call (403)220-2684. You can also take more time to think about being in the study and also talk some more with your parents about being in the study.

Other information about the study.

If you decide to be in the study, then please write your name below. You can change your mind and stop being part of the study at any time. All you have to do is tell the person in charge. It's okay. The researchers and your parents won't be upset with you
